Location

Plymouth is the largest city on the south coast of England, with a resident population of 250,000; the City has a growth agenda to increase that to 350,000 by 2020. Ernesettle forms the western part of the Plymouth conurbation and lies approximately 9 miles from the City centre and railway station, across the River Tamar.

Ernesettle lies to the far north-west of Plymouth, adjacent to the river Tamar. Ernesettle Lane has its own junction directly off the A38 Dual carriageway, which links Cornwall and Plymouth to the M5 at Exeter, 40miles to the east. Nearby occupiers include Kawasaki Precision, Vi-Spring Beds, Gregory Distribution, WSS (storage) and Marwood Plant.

Description

A fenced, brown-field site (previously accommodated a small secondary school), with shared use of a dual carriageway access road. The site is reasonably level with a gentle slope to the north.

Agents Note

The site is partly constrained by an MOD blast zone, which may affect the design and specification of any buildings. Alternative designs and replanning the site to offer a variant on the mix of units within the scheme creating a diverse range of buildings for lease and sale.
